

Medication-Assisted Treatment Symposium

Through collaborative efforts with the Arizona State University – Center for Applied Behavioral Health Policy, the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System announces the staging of the 2018 MAT Symposium. The event will provide information on clinically effective prevention and treatment strategies that best serve those being impacted by the opioid epidemic. The symposium will also include additional discussions on current state initiatives being implemented to combat this rapidly emerging crisis. The attendees focus will be geared towards MAT providers, substance use disorder treatment providers, physical health providers, harm reduction organizations, justice system partners and concerned community members.

Presentations/Speakers:

Adrienne Lindsey, MA, DBH - Arizona State University
Richard Christensen, PA, CAS - A.T. Still University
Turiya Coll - Sonoran Prevention Works
John Koch - Community Medical Services

Topics of Discussion Will Include:

- Current trends in opioid use and overdoses
- FDA-approved medications to treat substance use disorders
- Myths and misconceptions surrounding medication-assisted substance abuse treatment (MAT)
- Utilizing information about MAT in the criminal justice system as a method of advocating for such interventions
- Harm reduction and overdose prevention strategies
- Naloxone administration best practices
- Consumer experiences as an MAT recipient
- Open discussion and Q&A regarding local opioid issues

To register email matthew.fallico@azahcccs.gov

Please include Name, County, Job Title and Affiliated Agency

This is a free event and will incorporate 6 hours of CEUs for attendees.

Friday, August 3, 2018

9am-4pm

ASU Colleges at Lake Havasu City

Room: Santiago 109

100 University Way

Lake Havasu City, AZ 86403

Reaching across Arizona to provide comprehensive, quality health care to those in need

